

15.8.2007

Dr. Rainer Durth
Vice President
KfW Carbon Fund

Rainer Durth is engineer and economist by profession and works with KfW since 1995 in various functions. He looks back on many years of experience in Financial Cooperation with Developing Countries, mainly concentrating on power projects in Asia, and the design and introduction of market based financing mechanisms for development projects.

The last years Rainer Durth has worked on the establishment and operation of KfW's company-wide risk management system. In KfW Carbon Fund Rainer Durth is responsible for methodological matters, the acquisition of CDM/JI-projects in Europe and Africa and internal topics.

Dr. Rainer Durth teaches at the universities of Frankfurt and Darmstadt. His research interests cover international environmental problems, international knowledge diffusion, European integration and economic development.